Evy Jokhova

I dance for you my edifice

Performance

by Flora Wellesley Wesley

Sunday, 9 September 2018, 3pm

To mark the the end of the exhibition, Evy Jokhova invites dancer and choreographer Flora Wellesley Wesley to treat the sculpture Edifice I as a dance partner, performing on the final day of the exhibition.

Followed by a conversation between Evy Jokhova and Sophie J Williamson, curator Camden Arts Centre.

Flora Wellesley Wesley collaborates with a variety of choreographers, visual artists and directors as a performer and researcher on projects for camera, stage, and gallery and site-specific spaces, as well as making her own work. She created and orchestrated various 'meanwhile dances' and pop-up shows with Hiru Dance Organisation and was on the editorial team of BELLYFLOP Magazine for several years. Flora is an active member of Equity and advocates for good practice and workers' rights in the dance field.

Sophie J Williamson is a curator and writer based in London. Since 2013, as Programme Curator (Exhibitions) at Camden Arts Centre, she has realised ambitious solo exhibitions and new commissions by international artists, including Kara Walker, Moyra Davey, Glenn Ligon, Ruth Ewan, Ben Rivers, Geta Brătescu and many others. Her writing has appeared in Frieze, Art Monthly and Aesthetica, as well as exhibition publications and independent journals. She previously worked on a range of major international exhibitions, including the inaugural Singapore Biennale (2006), the Venice Biennale (2007) and the first Asia Triennial Manchester (2008), as well as a range of projects across Europe, Asia, the UK and online. She received her BA in Fine Art from Goldsmiths College, London and an MA in Curating Contemporary Art, Royal College of Art. She was the first recipient of the Gasworks Curatorial Fellowship in 2016.
